

Aunt Annie's here!

Level 1 – Where's Higgins?

Part II

Hi! It's me, Annie!

Here's Part II of the short story about Heather. Do you remember that she's looking for her dog, Higgins? He's somewhere in the house, but she can't find him.

He's not upstairs in her brother's bedroom and he's not in the attic, so where can he be?

Listen carefully for clues about each room as you follow Heather through the other rooms of her house.

Heather is downstairs now. Higgins isn't in the living room, so she goes into the room next to the stairs. There is a toilet, a washbasin and mirror, a shower, but no bathtub. Do you remember what this room is called in English? That's right, it's the bathroom. Now we know there are two bathrooms in Heather's house: one upstairs and one downstairs.

She goes into the next room. This is where her mother and father cook, so naturally there is a cooker and an oven. There's also a sink, a dishwasher, a fridge and many, many cupboards. In the middle of the room, there is a table and four chairs. Higgins is not under the table. Hmm, where can he be? What's this room called in English? That's right, it's the kitchen. Well done!

Is Higgins in the cellar? Heather opens the cellar door. Oh, it's dark down there. She turns on the light and goes down the stairs. What does she see? Skis, snowboards, sleds, mountain bikes and a tent. But no Higgins. She calls his name and hears him bark upstairs.

Heather runs upstairs and calls his name again. She finds him in the hall, waiting at the front door. Higgins wants to go for a walk!

Bye for now!
